¹ Justin Hish is from a small town outside of Chicago, Illinois and began his studies at the University of Notre Dame as an engineering student. Inspired to explore his heritage and culture, he changed his program of study to Italian Literature and Philosophy and graduated with a Bachelor of Arts in 2014. He studied abroad in an overseas exchange program at the Università di Bologna in his third year of university and now works at Collegio Rotondi as an English assistant in the liceo scientifico, teaching courses in science, literature and international politics. He credits his passion for the poetry of Dante with opening up a world of opportunity both abroad in Europe and back home in the United States. He has worked various jobs in the Italian cities of Rome, Bologna, and Milan as a translator, educator, private tutor, and international liaison. His interest in exploring other cultures has given him the confidence to work in varied sectors and contexts, and provided him with a multicultural, international outlook on life that has proven invaluable both at home and abroad.

² As the Managing Director for EuroMed, Guido leads the transformation of the EuroMed organization (Italy, Turkey, Israel, Romania, Balkans, Romania, ...) into an united and focused team well equipped to deliver accelerated growth across the three channels and industries Dassault Systemes serves. This entails an optimized market coverage and business model, building up awareness, forging partnerships with local influencers, and enabling an inspiring and efficient environment, working closely with 3DS' global functions. Before DS, in 2009 Guido Porro joined Oracle as Director, Industry Strategy & Insight with focus on Italy. He quickly took on further responsibilities as Senior Director with additional focus on Russia, the Balkans, Turkey, Greece, Poland and former CIS countries. Guido was responsible for a Top account Sales program coordinating Presales, Marketing and Sales. He had previously accumulated several years of experience in consulting and business analysis working for the Boston Consulting Group and Accenture on organization & change management, post-merger integrations and operational improvements. Guido holds an MBA from INSEAD and an Econometrics Degree from Bocconi University in Milan, and has developed deep knowledge in particular in relation to Energy, Industrial Equipment and Retail.
